What to Expect from a FEMA Inspector

Survivors seeking housing assistance must first register with FEMA. Applicants who register will be given a personal application number. The number is used throughout the disaster assistance process. Survivors should record the number and keep it secure and handy for all future dealings with FEMA.

FEMA Eligibility Letter, the First Letter May Not Be the Final Word

If you applied for disaster assistance with the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) following Hurricane Sandy and received a letter stating you were not eligible for disaster aid, you should know that the first letter may not be the final word.

DISASTER LEGAL SERVICES-The Disaster Legal Services hotline number in New Jersey is active. The number is:

1-888-541-1900 This toll-free hotline number is now available for survivors in New Jersey facing legal issues due to Hurricane Sandy. Residents who cannot afford to pay an attorney can call the help line to request free legal assistance starting at 9 a.m. (Monday, Nov. 12). The office will be staffed from 9AM to 5PM, Monday through Friday by members of the Young Lawyers Division of the New Jersey Bar Association. Voice messages can be left when the office is not staffed.

The type of legal assistance available includes:

- Assistance with replacing legal documents that may have been lost due to flooding
- Assistance with life, medical and property insurance-related claims

- Assistance in consumer protection matters, remedies, and procedures

- Counseling on mortgage-foreclosure problems
- Counseling on landlord/tenant problems
- Creditor-debtor matters
- FEMA appeals

The way the program works is:

- Through an intake process, callers will be matched with a volunteer attorney who can provide assistance or general legal information regarding their issue.
- Callers should identify that they are seeking legal assistance related to Hurricane Sandy.
- The hotline will be staffed during normal business hours, but messages can be left at any time.

The helpline is part of a long-standing partnership between FEMA and the ABA, and is administered by the New Jersey State Bar Association through its Mass Disaster Response Program.

If you have any questions about Disaster Legal Services, please call your DLS Specialist at the JFO.

The Disaster Distress Helpline (DDH) is the first national hotline dedicated to providing year-round disaster crisis counseling. This toll-free, multilingual, crisis support service is available 24/7 via telephone (1-800-985-5990) and SMS (text 'TalkWithUs' to 66746) to residents in the U.S. and its territories who are experiencing emotional distress related to natural or man-made disasters.

Callers and texters are connected to trained and caring professionals from the closest crisis counseling center in the network. Helpline staff provides counseling and support, including information on common stress reactions and healthy coping, as well as referrals to local disaster-related resources for follow-up care and support.

Visit <http://disasterdistress.samhsa.gov> for additional information and resources related to disaster behavioral health.

HUD is:

-Offering the New York, New Jersey and other entitlement communities the ability to re-allocate existing federal resources toward disaster relief – HUD's Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and HOME programs give the State and communities the flexibility to redirect millions of dollars to address critical needs, including housing and services for disaster victims. HUD is currently contacting State and local officials to explore opportunities to use the Department's CDBG and HOME programs in order to expedite the repair and replacement of damaged housing;

-Granting immediate foreclosure relief – HUD granted a 90-day moratorium on foreclosures and forbearance on foreclosures of Federal Housing Administration (FHA)-insured home mortgages;

-Making mortgage insurance available – HUD's Section 203(h) program provides FHA insurance to disaster victims who have lost their homes and are facing the daunting task of rebuilding or buying another home. Borrowers from participating FHA-approved lenders are eligible for 100 percent financing, including closing costs;
